DR. F. R. SPARKS GIVES ADDRESS

Doctor Speaks on Various Causes of Insanity at Tuesday Convocation.

"A great deal of mental trouble is emotional," said Dr. F. R. Sparks, president of the Iowa Mental Hygiene commission of Iowa, in his address at convocation Tuesday, Feb. 11. Dr. Sparks addressed students and faculty at the Feb. 11 convocation.

Lack of adaptability to present surroundings is a great cause of insanity, he said, for inadaptability produces fear, worry, nervousness, disillusion, dissatisfaction, and finally mental disorder.

"Lead Healthy Lives."

"Live your own life, every one boy to perfect condition and you will be better able to keep a sound mind," he asserted. At state institutions, he said, the mentally disordered are given every kind of attention and cared for physically as well as mentally.

Thirty Per Cent Are Cured.

Thirty per cent of those who become mental inmates are discharged as cured, he said, while about 30 years ago only five per cent were discharged as cured. Four per cent are discharged as improved. Four-tenths of one per cent, he said, each year, with 1,300 to 1,600 patients.

Insanity Increasing Is Better.

Improvement in the treatment of the insane is largely responsible for Dr. Sparks. "Once the insane were kept in cells and considered as hopeless cases and the violent were chained to the walls," he declared, and big irons. Today these are kept in hospitals and treated as sick by hypnotists and hot baths."

Dr. Sparks pointed out the reason that a person's brain may be sick, and that organs may also be sick; himself all insanity carries the stigma with it. Great progress in the treatment of the insane has already been made, and with more and more people, and much more in the future, Dr. Sparks concluded.

Work exams for rural school teachers will be special lectures. Interested persons, not now employed may be sent to the Registrar, Waverly college.

Esmer, who is also supposed to succeed him. "We also announce that the staff has already been done in the snapshot department. Those that it will be carried on," Mr. Monarch commented. "Every student will get his good snaps of student life—we hope." Snapshots may be turned in at any time.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Every school is organized for its students. Their education is its aim, which it strives to achieve in all possible ways. This also is true of Wartburg. The curriculum is arranged for the varying needs of the students; extra-curricular activities are planned for their social developements, rules are made to keep the standards high and interest at a minimum.

Since this is true, certainly the students should have some voice in the government which directs them. Up to this time, the faculty has almost comp[l]etely governed all phases of student life. The students have had little if any voice in their social affairs or their school.

The acquiring of the ability to share responsibility and to make decisions is a vital part of an education. Where can the students better obtain this than in a student government? As one faculty member so ably stated it: "One essential quality and purpose of student government is the sharing of responsibility." At Antioch college in Ohio, the students share a great deal of the responsibility in the governing of their school. The result is that regulatory discipline is found unnecessary at Antioch.

Student opinion is overwhelmingly in favor of self-government. They are willing and anxious to assist in coordination of all phases of school life and activities. Members of the faculty also feel that student government is desirable.

Nearly every college has some form of student council which works with the faculty in directing student affairs. This makes for greater harmony and unity in the student body itself and also between faculty and students. Greater efficiency in accomplishing aims is also obtained. All these schools which were united to form our Wartburg found student government to be very satisfactory.

Students are demanding some voice in the government of their school. The Trumpet suggests the organization of a representative student council, composed of members elected from each class. This student council should be empowered to aid in the direction of all activities closely connected with student life, for instance, they should be represented on the activities and athletic committees, which direct the extra curricular activities of the students.

If possible, a student council should be organized this year. The second semester has hardly begun. Many problems of student life will still arise. However if for some justifiable reason it is found inadvisable to elect a student council for the remainder of this year, spring election should be held to insure one for next year.

The Trumpet asks a student body meeting in the near future to consider and discuss this matter.

WE EXPRESS OUR APPRECIATION

We wish to express our appreciation to the faculty for writing and editing the last issue of the Trumpet, which appeared immediately after the semester examinations. The staff appreciates this expression of faculty cooperation, which enabled them to devote their entire time to examinations. This issue, (Feb. 3) was also a success, as the fifteen hundred copies were sent throughout the mid-west.

STUDENTS TEACH IN HIGH SCHOOL

Three Students Practice Teach in High School; Eight in the Elementary Schools.

Wartburg students who will be graduated from teaching courses this spring are now engaged in practice teaching at three of the local schools for the first weeks of this semester.

Three Teach at High School.

John Habermehl has charge of two classes in history and one in civics. Ruth Neumann is teaching one class in civics to the seventh grade class and assisting in both high school courses.

Teach in Elementary Schools.

The following department, conducted by Dr. M. Wiedenhagen, has also had student practice teachers in the students of the elementary teaching course.

Alma Reick, Ruth Coppelt, and Arthur Schoen are teaching in the elementary school at the Waverly high school. Ruth Coppelt is teaching in the fifth grade, Alma Reick in the sixth grade, and Arthur Schoen in the fourth grade. Miss Ruth Reick, Miss Bertha Lemke, Miss Fredericke Martin, Lessenberg, and Dorothea Sutton are teaching in the rural teaching.

Other students plan to enroll in the practice teaching course next fall, as soon as the schedule arrangements have been made.

DISTITCHES

By Arno B. Overleitzer

Here we are again; time has passed,
And with it the same old verses;
We start out the column with a poem
On spring! Is it all right with you?
O. K.

Exams are over,
Vacation's won,
We're flung off our burdens,
Let's have some fun.

Tee hours and hours
Have been studying and grasping;
But now tests are over,
The prodigies have vermished.

But, by, don't come too soon,
There's a reward for every deed,
And, face, do not break into a smile
Till the report card has been read.
(—H. E. A.)

Here is what Bigsed Taylor once wrote on the subject of character:
"Paine is what you have taken,
Character is what you give;
When to this truth you awaken,
Then you begin to live."

A look, a touch, a word is enough, not infrequently, to betray the man back of it. Or the circumstances back of the characteristic!

Leschensky's jeans my father must have been a pretty bad boy.
Keith: Why?
Leschensky: Because he knows exactly what questions to ask when he wants to know what I've been doing.

There are too many men who make the sacrament of this verse the occasion of their creed:
This is the burden of my song,
I sing it day and night;
Why are so many always wrong
When I am always right?

And now I must close. Lets take this little thought along with us for the coming week, shall we?

Two introverts, who served on the serving platoon each one across the aisle from the other, did so the eminent major says. Good evening, friends.

The Wartburg-Ellsworth basketball game scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 18, has been cancelled, announced Coach Elmer Hertel, director of athletics Friday. Coal shortage caused the cancellation.

WINTER.

The snow is blowing through the trees,
Stripping off the last few leaves.
Winters fury on us descends,
As God a new born beauty lends.
Covered white all else and drear,
While nature slumbers, a sure look ner door.

Winter has entrance the sun will some,
And then all it shall relieve—
A life that has been tense
And with a start awaits, will break of the trance.

LITERARY CORNER

MOONLIGHT REVELS

Over her rampart, slowly ascending,
Veils the wan moon on her nothing way;
Over the tree tops gorgeously painted,
Fills dumb night's bird in silvery array.

Over the green meadow she shimmering fire-fly
Has hewed its nest in the moss-covered dale;
Sweetly the lay of a nest-throated songster
Wins with the thrills of a gay night-ingale.

Frolic on the sward many fleet-footed shadows
Chasing to wing of a frolic-some breeze;
Notorious fly merry and change their weird figures
As gently the wind fan the whimsical leaves.

When the breezlet responds to the impulse,
Quivering the tender fix creatures refrain,
Then 'long the shore near the sweet blushing lilies
Creaks a will chair in fantastic dead-dain.

Thus in the arms of the flowers' scent,
Pulse of the nymphs and a refpire for men,
Nature rejoices and sends fresh her music,
Wafted by winds over crag and fen.

Comments by the President

"Liberal or Vocational Training?" Today the American boy may select a liberal or a vocational training. The one tends to focus the mind on a particular trade or profession; the other tends to broaden a man's mental horizon by emphasizing the imagination, broadening the sympathies and liberating the mind from ignorance prejudice and superstition.

Vocational training bears skill; liberal training affords power to do things which one has never done before. The best of a liberal college course, said W. J. H. Sprecher, is the ability to see that the most wonderful thing in human life and the book has described. Can you understand structure and appreciate a navigator's point of view? Can you analyze a temple according to location, or see the right and wrong in capital and labor? Can you discover the reason for a deficit in business? If you can, not only because he says, you may be a poor artisan of a poor bookkeeper, but you will shape some civilization that is to be.

The day of the one-sided specialist, we are happy to say, is passing to an end. Doctors, lawyers, merchants and others are expected to be able to speak intelligently on other things than "shop." That is why the best schools of the land are now offering courses which present both skill and knowledge. That is why various professional today pertinate in A. B. degree as a prerequisite for vocational training. Wartburg college is proud of its liberal arts program, and of the many graduates interested in securing a knowledge, basic training, remember WARTBURG at Waverly.

Grossmann Hall
Residents Prove
Themselves Hardy

Wartburg may be a cold, cold campus, but the hardy Grossmannites "rarin' even with three-foot drifts blocking their way to classes and meals.

A chain gang lighting system has been developed to brighten the dreary way to class. The object is for six to stand and slide or trail side by another. Some sarcastic souls have called pull up the collars of their sweaters and make the two-block dash with a cutting effort, but the nonregulars have realist the lure of the snow, which is exactly the right depth for pushing in some unwary freshman or anyone else.

Wartburg Hall is content to watch the sight from warm rooms and player in spectator.

Rev. A. O. Dinner, pastor of St. Johns Lutheran church of Mascoutah, Ill., and Zion's Lutheran at Prescott, Wis., is engaged to take Elizabeth Kunder of Milwaukee. The wedding will take place in August.

KNIGHTS DRUB ELKADER CAGERS BY 40-16 SCORE

Elkader Team Helpless Beneath Crushing Attack.

Coach Bartels's Wartburg Knights traveled to Elkader on Friday, February 7, to completely smother the Elkader Arms by the lop-sided score of 40-16. The score would have been even more overwhelming had Coach Bartels kept his first string in the fray instead of sending in his reserves by the half dozen minutes of the contest. Every man on the travelling squad saw action and even in the last 16 minutes the second stringers gave the Elkader's six points by sinking up on Hinrichsen. The Orange and Black completely outclassed the Elkader players in every department and five of Elkader's seven field goals were counted from the far end of the floor beyond the free throw circle.

In the first few minutes the Wartburg team displayed a flare for dazzling the Elkader defense but this brief flurry soon died out and the remainder of the game was a listless affair. Neither team was set. Misses were little better than 50% as Arms had talked things over from the evening Knights were to appear and five of Elkader's seven field goals were counted from far out on
